

Asheville Center For Chinese Medicine

70 Woodfin Place Suite West Wing Two 828 258-2777 Asheville, North Carolina 28801
Info@AcupunctureAsheville.com www.AcupunctureAsheville.com

Flying Dragon Liniment

Asheville Center for Chinese Medicine is pleased to introduce Flying Dragon Liniment, developed by Kath Bartlett, MS, LAc & Traditional Chinese Herbalist. (www.AcupunctureAsheville.com) Bartlett was looking for an oil-based alternative to the alcohol-based liniments currently available. She found this prescription from a TCM (Traditional Chinese Medicine) traumatologist in her files. Bartlett has been using this formula in her clinic in Asheville, NC for 7 years. Her patients love it and continually ask for more bottles for themselves, their friends and family. It makes a welcome gift for gardeners, sports enthusiasts, computer/office workers and seniors. Massage therapists will find that it improves their massages, and martial artists will appreciate the pain relief it offers. Because it is so reliably effective, acupuncturists will want to include it as an integral part of their treatment plans for bi (painful obstruction) syndrome. This is a dependable liniment that should be in everybody's medicine cabinet.

Traditional Chinese Medical (TCM) theory states that pain is caused by Qi (energy) and Blood not moving in the channels and muscle tissue. The herbs in this liniment are formulated to stop pain by warming and moving Qi and Blood in the affected area.

To use: Apply a small amount of the liniment to the affected area morning and evening, and throughout the day, as necessary. During activities such as exercise or physical work that aggravate the condition, apply directly before and after activity, and take a break midway to rest and re-apply the oil. This generously sized, 4oz. bottle will last a good, long while.

This liniment is made from herbs imported from China that are grown without pesticides or chemicals and processed without sulphites or preservatives. A local herbalist in Asheville (www.savoirherbals.com) soaked the herbs in apricot & organic olive oil for 6-8 weeks and then hand-pressed them to extract the oil. Ingredients: Cinnamon (Gui Zhi/Rou Gui), Fennel (Xiao Hui Xiang), Peach Seed (Tao Ren), Safflower (Hong Hua), Myrrh (Mo Yao), Angelica (Du Huo/Bai Zhi), Clematis (Wei Ling Xian), Impatiens (Tou Gu Cao), Aconite (Cao Wu/Chuan Wu), Notopterigium (Qiang Huo), Lycopodium (Shen Jin Cao).

Asheville Center for Chinese Medicine is offering this generously sized, 4oz. bottle at an introductory price of $25/bottle. The bottle will last a long while.

Healthcare Practitioners and retail merchants: please contact us for special pricing. Provide licensure vendor verification information. Upon verification we will provide trade pricing.

Flying Dragon Liniment can also be purchased from:
Kamwo Herbal Supply Company located in New York's Chinatown
<https://www.kamwo.com/shop/product.php?productid=17442&cat=0&page=1>

Golden Needle Acupuncture, Herbal & Medical Supply, Candler, NC
(Healthcare Practitioners only)
<http://www.goldenneedleonline.com/index.php?page=categories&category=14&vendor=&product=5554&pg=>

Testimonials from happy patients:

"I have used Flying Dragon Liniment for everything from the pain caused from a separated shoulder, to post-workout exercise stiffness, to random bruises and am amazed at how quick effective it is in alleviating pain. It's pretty much "magic in a bottle"! Plus, it smells GREAT and makes excellent massage oil. I agree it should be a staple in everyone's medicine cabinet." Karen Stryker, Asheville, NC

I cannot remember when I first started using the liniment (maybe 2005), for back pain and stiffness. I would not be caught without it. It is stashed in my backpack at all times so I always have it readily available. I have used it daily since first being introduced to the product. I call it my WD-40 in a bottle. I would also like to add, that prior to seeking acupuncture and liniment regime, traditional doctors insisted surgery was the only way I could see relief from the back pain. Thus far, I have avoided that plan of treatment. And a bottle does last a long time. I apply as many times as needed on a daily basis (between 2-4 times) and a bottle will last at least 3 months. That is a small investment for such large returns.
Rita Davis-Rice, Asheville, NC

Flying Dragon liniment has been one of our unique products that we carry here since it is oil based and not alcohol base. Best of all it does what die da jius do without the stink. Tom Leung, LAc, CEO Kamwo Herbal Pharmacy